

Dr. Selma K. Bartholomew, President of Legacy Pathways

Dr. Selma K. Bartholomew has more than 18 years of solid experience as an educator and leader. As president of Legacy Pathways, she is responsible for the company's strategic direction and works to ensure strong partnerships. All products and services are professional, efficiently developed, and represent Legacy Pathways' Core Values and Guiding Principles: Innovation, Collaboration, Trust, and Diversity.

Dr. Bartholomew is committed to improving the quality of K-12 education and to Legacy Pathways' mission of preparing teachers and leaders to meet the challenges of today and tomorrow. She strongly believes that the potential to transform the workplace rests with those who are committed to supporting authentic learning for ALL stakeholders.

Dr. Bartholomew is a researcher, published author, and a dynamic leader. She earned her doctorate degree in Educational Leadership, Administration, and Policy from Fordham University. She is a recognized as a Dr. Barbara Jackson Scholar by the University Council for Educational Administration. In addition, she holds a Master of Science in Education degrees from Adelphi University and Fordham University, and has pursued graduate studies in pure mathematics at The City University of New York (ABD).

Dr. Bartholomew is an innovative and creative thinker focused on people, on problem-solving, and on helping schools, districts, and organizations build the capacity to improve teaching, learning, and leadership. She can be contacted at the following:

drselmab@partnerwithlegacy.com